BITTERNESS DEVELOPS AMONG Brilliant Reception at New REGULARS AND INSURGENTS.

Central Committee in State of Washington Unable to Fix Convention Date.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 27 .- Strife between the regular and so-called insurgent wings of the republican party in this state reached an acute stage at a meeting of the state central committee today. called to set a date for the republican state convention to nominate five candidates for supreme judge. The contest comes from the candidacy of Representative Miles Poindexter of Spokane, one of the insurgent leaders in the House, for United States senator to succeed Senator S. H. Piles. Poindexter has a strong state organization, but both senators, the two other representatives from Washington and the state central committee are openly opposed to him.

The regulars favor the holding of the state convention in June or July and the adoption of a platform. Such a platform would be a handicap to him, Poindexter claims, in the senatorial primary, which is to be held in September. The Poindexter organization contends the state committee has ceased to exist and that the primary law provides for the selection of the new committee at the September primary. The progressives maintain that the state convention should be called by the newly elected committee and should be held after the senatorial primaries. against Poindexter.

Concluding Feature of Dedication. Peace Dominant Feature of Addresses of Notables.

The dedication of a splendid American temple of peace, the new building of the international bureau of American rebublies, gift of Andrew Carnegie to the cause of humanity, was completed last night with a brilliant reception in the handsome structure. President Taft stood at the head of the receiving line and welcomed the guests, and near him stood Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegle, the guests of honor. There, too, were the diplomatic representatives of the twenty sister American republics of the United States, participating in the most significant event which has taken place in the western hemisphere in years.

It was a brilliant throng that swept up the marble steps of the new building to Senator W. L. Jones is leading the fight do honor to this physical token of the peace pact between the twenty-one American republics and to the man whose munificence has made possible the realization of a capitol of all the republics of the west, placed within the capital of the greatest of them al!. About 2,500 guests were present at the reception, including the most distinguished persons in official and residential life in Washington. The handsome gowns of the women, the court costumes of the diplomats and the gold lace of the army and navy officers added to the color of the scene, which rarely has had its equal in Washington. The new building, beautiful in its architectural conception and execution, with its broad stairways and quaint patio, tellling of the Latin-Americans who hold so much of the western hemisphere, with trickling fountain and rare southern plants, made a fitting background to the picture.
